Multi-Stakeholder Projects and Long-Term Commitments for Sustainable and Inclusive Development and Capacity Building

“IndonesiaWISE has been a consistent proponent of Sustainable and Inclusive Development and Capacity Building. Within these broad areas our focus has been on Sustainable Finance, Tourism, Manufacturing & Supply Chains, Skills based Competency Development, Values oriented Leadership, Innovation driven Transformation, Social Compliance, Gender & Community Empowerment, Environment, Social and Governance.

To facilitate policy improvements, greater awareness, timely research, critical capacity building and practical implementation, we have for decades proactively pioneered and participated in multi-stakeholder projects both locally and internationally.

These projects have involved collaborations with key stakeholders like government ministries at the central and provincial level, embassies, regulatory bodies, international arms of the United Nations, multi-lateral lending institutions, industry associations, academic institutions, public and private sector companies, sectoral forums, civil society groups, media, experts and communities.

We are grateful for the positive engagements and partnership approach that has helped us enhance the impact of our initiatives, several of which have been undertaken on a non-profit basis. We remain committed to making a difference and contributing with passion.”

Multi-Stakeholder Projects and Long-Term Commitments

“21st century problems cannot be solved without multi-stakeholder partnerships and commitments. There must be open sharing of ideas and best practices with the firm belief that development must be sustainable not short-term and economic growth must be inclusive not concentrated and cornered by elites.

However, the deepening of economic divides across the globe indicates a broad failure of the large, powerful and well-resourced organizations and agencies to inclusively engage with diverse stakeholders and the community at large. Consequently, progress on SDGs especially in developing countries remains patchy and inconsistent. Urgent course correction is required through greater teamwork, outreach and collaboration among the like-minded

Despite limited resources, IndonesiaWISE has consistently pioneered multi-stakeholder projects in the fields of sustainable development, education, capacity building, research, inter-cultural understanding and support for creative pursuits. We have also proactively participated in initiatives launched by credible government entities, organizations, forums and individuals. Our journey has been enhanced by these engagements and the best practice learning, knowledge sharing and professional networking that they have provided. ”
